Rejections based on 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 9 and 10-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 9 and 10-14, line 1, there is no antecedent basis for "the system." It appears as though applicant has mixed up the dependency of these claims.

Rejections based on Prior Art

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fradkin (US 6,384,917).

Fradkin discloses a method for identifying tooth shades comprised of storing in a data base color coordinates (hue, saturation and intensity) for three zones of a master teeth set (note column 4, lines 26-44).

Fradkin further discloses using a ccd camera 41 to obtain an image of a patient's tooth which is fed to personal computer 45 which in turn allows the operator to control an optical system which focuses light on every point in the chosen zone thereby enabling the system to record the color information for every point selected by the operator (note column 3, lines 26-34). Fradkin doesn't explicitly state that the image from the ccd camera is displayed on the personal computer to which it is conveyed, but that is what one of ordinary skill in the art would expect and most certainly find obvious as a matter of routine. Personal computers are routinely configured to display the images that they receive. Fradkin doesn't explicitly state how the operator chooses each desired zone with the computer and electronic image, but again one of ordinary skill in the art would have readily found obvious the selection of a particular zone with a mouse moving a box representing the zone over the electronic image to the desired zone, particularly in light of Figure 1 which appears to suggest just such an operation. Applicant's "displaying" and "moving" steps appear to be nothing more than specifying the obvious nuts and bolts of the process disclosed by Fradkin.

The Fradkin method then generates values for the color coordinates of each identified regions and then by comparing those values to the data base of the master teeth set the proper tooth shade can be determined (note particularly column 4, lines 45-62).

In regard to claim 2, Fradkin in Figure 1 teaches choosing the upper, middle and lower regions on the teeth.
